MONEY, BONDS AND STOCKS.

A Dull and Weak Market in New York, Closing at the Lowest Prices of the Day. NEW YORK, Oct. 15 .- Money on call was easy at 2021 per cent., the last loan being made at 24 per cent, closing offered at 24 per cent

Prime mercantile paper, 42 26 per cent. Sterling exchange was dull but steady at 34.832 for sixty-day bills and $4.87} for demand. The sales of stocks to-day were 142,175 shares, including the following: Lake Shore, 8,830; Missouri Pacific, 4.110; Northern Pacific preferred, 5,250; New England, 14,974; Reading, 13,300; Richmond & West Point, 8,060; St. Paul, 32,284; Union Pacific, 7,720; Western Union, 4,000. The stock market was dull and weak to-day, the rallies being slight and of short duration, while the movements in the list, except in a few leading stocks, were small and generally unimportant. The pressure was principally against the grangers, which were sold on the gloomy views of the situation taken by the vice-president of the Northwestern road, which induced the "bears" and traders who have again got over to the side of lower figures, to make a drive at those stocks, although there was some for the foreigners and some "long" stocks was thrown over by small holders who have grown tired of carrying their load. The dealings, however, were almost entirely professional, the disposition to operate being very small among the more influential of speculators. Among the active list, however, Lackawanna, New England and Missouri Pacific showed marked weakness at times, and all are materially lower this evening on a very moderate business. The continued weakness in Atchison was not without its effect in creating a distrustful feeling. A few specialties, among which Oregon Short-line and St. Paul & Duluth were strong, and also Cotton Oil, were still more active than at any time on the present rise, and reached higher figures than for many months. The opening figures were from to per cent below the closing prices of Saturday, and the market began to decline immediately, while there was no animation whatever in the regular list out side of St. Paul and New England, the former resuming its old place as leader of the market in point of activity. Cotton Oil was again active and strong, but it had little or no effect upon the rest of the stocks traded in. Extreme duliness marked the trading after the first hour and Atchison and Burlington & Quincy became features on account of their marked weakness. The amount of business done continued to show 3 decrease until toward delivery hour when the list displayed some strength, though the advantage was lost in the last hour, and the market closed dull and weak at or near the lowsat prices of the day. The active list is almost invariably lower this evening, and Atchison lost 52, Burlington & Quincy, 12. Missouri Pacific, New England, and St. Paul, 12 each, Northern Pacific preferred and Lackawanna, 12 each, and Rehmond & West Point, 1 per cent. The railroat wand market was quiet to-day with a generally steady to firm tone and a well-distributed business. There was no special activ-

ular, but advances are in a majority, and the principal gain was in Great Western firsts, 24, to 1134. The declines include Milwaukee Lake Shore firsts, 3, to 112. Government bonds were dull and heavy.

ity except in St. Louis, Arkansas & Texas firsts, which furnished $139,000 to the day's CHICAGO, Oct. 15. - The wheat market to-day ruled heavy and prices suffered a material decline all around. The offerings, in the first place, were quite large, and, besides, other influences were of a bearish character. A prominent local trader, who has figured on the "bull" side, was credited with being the principal seller. At the same time, while the offerings were large, there was but little demand to meet the offerings, and a sharp break resulted. The opening was 1 22c lower than Saturday's closing, and with small fluctuations declined 340 more, and May 1sc more, then railed 1sc, fluctuated some, and closed 5c lower for December and 32s lower for May than Saturday. The weakness was influenced some by the liberal receipts at Minneapolis, and also increased arrivals at interior and winter-wheat markets. The corn market was moderately active but weaker, and prices lower. The opening was unsettled at about the same figures as Saturday's close, broke 2010 for October and November, and to for May, rallied 10%c, but weakened and de-clined 1%c, rallied %c, and closed quiet and easy at inside prices. The feeling in the speculative oats market was weak, and tole lower prices prevailed; trading was centered mainly in May. Trading was somewhat limited in mess pork and prices were irregular within a small range. January met with most favor. There was no particular pressure to sell, and the inquiry was light. Sales were made early at 21 250 advance, but receded again 20 @ 25c, and closed quiet. Only fair business was transacted in lard. Early the feeling was a trifle stronger, and prices were slightly advanced. Later there was little inclination to sell, especially the near deliveries, and prices receded . 10 a. 124c. The different deliveries showed steadiness and only receded .02 c from outside figures reached. Very little interest was manifested in the market for favorable Weather Conditions. INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 15. In most departments trade was rather quiet to-day, the rains of the past few days rather checked business. Of course the duliness is but temporary. In prices to-day there were but few changes. Sugars and coffees are both in stronger position than last week, and although there was no advance made to-day, higher prices are indicated before the week closes. All staple groceries have again taken on a firm tone. In dry goods there was no newfeatures, prices ruling teady, and on most lines firm. The provision market is hardly as firm as last week; however there is no change in prices as yet. The flour market rules strong and demand for all grades unchanged in price, but receipts are so large of both Irish and sweet potatoes that lower prices are probable. Poultry is barely steady at quotations and another | cent drop is in prospect. Butter in good supply and selling a little slow unless a superior article. Eggs firm, receipts

Wheat is a little offish and prices weak; bidding on 'Change was cautious, millers showing no anxiety to buy at present prices. Spot corn in fair demand; offerings liberal. With the near approach of the time for the new crop to come to the market, buyers work close, making purchases only for immediate require-ments. Oats in fair demand for local consumption. Track bids to-day ruled as follows:

Conveyances, 10; consideration...... $6,953.00 Keeping Garden Vegetables.

Country Gentleman. An exchange says, "Apples, potatoes, cabbage, and sometimes beets, turnips, and pars-nips may be kept till spring." This length of time will doubtless apply to ordinary modes of storage in cellars, but with suitable packing we find no difficulty in keeping garden roots quite fresh the year round. There is little difficulty in retaining potatoes in nearly as good a condition as those freshly dug, provided the temperature is kept so low that they will not sprout or grow, the skin being nearly impervious to moisture, so that they will not wilt. Beets, turnips, and especially parsnips, become withered and dry in a comparatively short time, and it is essential to imbed them in a suitable packing substance to prevent the escape of moisture. Sawdust, slightly damp (but not wet), answers an excellent purpose, provided it is placed in boxes sufficiently small in size to prevent heating. All the interstices between the roots must be compactly filled. They should then be kept in a cool cellar. Sawdust being an excellent non-conductor of heat, a few degrees of frost in the cellar for a few hours, during ac excessively cold snap, will not be likely to reach them. We have kept garden beets in this way through the twelve months, and taken them out in November apparently as fresh as the day they were due, although with some loss of flavor.

Parsnips, which wither rapidly when exposed to the air, may be kept fresh in this way during winter, but those needed for spring use should be left in the ground where they grew, and taken out in spring for ready use or else packed away by the mode already described for longer keeping. They may be allowed to remain in the ground a few weeks longer, if the roots are not allowed to become exhausted by the growing leaves, which is prevented by cutting off the starting foliage rapidly with a light hoe ground sharp on the grindstone. Cabbage, intended for early use in winter, or for a few months, may be kept by a mode somewhat similar, using slightly damp moss instead of sawdust, or the latter will answer nearly as well. Procure good sized or long boxes, cover the bottoms with two or three inches of the moss, place a stratum of the cabbage heads regularly and compactly on this layer, then having added another laver of moss proceed as before, till the box is filled. A quite low temperature for the box is desirable, and some frost occasionally will do no harm.

When moss is used for packing roots it answers a good purpose if rubbed or ground rather fine or pulverized. It may be necessary during the winter to examine the degree of moisture, and if quite dry or likely to become so, to apply more with a watering pot, but not to drench them. It is essential to maintain a low temperature, to prevent any danger from rot-

An Experiment with Cut Fodder.

G. W. Hogue, in Farm and Garden. When I read the wonderful success some reported on cut fodder. I felt anxious to try the experiment myself. So I made the necessary arrangements and went at it in good faith and earnest. To commence with, I had twenty bushels of corn and oats equally mixed ground, and then added two hundred pounds of shorts to make it stick to the cut fodder better. I cut the fodder quite short, then put a peck of the meal to a couple of baskets of the out fodder. and fed twice a day for about four days. I noticed very little of the fodder had been eaten. but considerable of the meal was still sticking to the stalks that was left; so I concluded to put another ration of meal on the same stalks and try it again. The result was the same, only more meal left on the stalks. Then I threw the stuff out for bedding, and went to the straw pile and got some nice oat straw and cut two baskets and put on the peck of meal. The whole was eaten clean. After feeking this way for four days I was told the cows were giving more milk. Now if the straw caused the greater flow of milk, then straw is preferable to fodder. Otherwise there was a waste in the meal. But I still feed long fodder in the straw-yard, and the cows don't est much straw while they can get fodder. I still cut to feed in the stable to avoid the litter and trouble with the stalks, but don't think it a saving measure at all. I find the more the blades are mussed, broken or cut, the less they are eaten; at least this is my opinion and observa-

In developing cows for butter the feeder should be sure that he does not overfeed, but as he finds they eat with a good appetite he may add a little more to each feed, and so continue gradually to increase the feed as they will bear it. The power of digestion will increase, and he may gradually increase the milking capacity of his cows and their production of butter. The skill of the feeder has much to do with the result.

Deserving of Confidence-There is no article which so richly deserves the entire confidence of the community as Brown's Bronchial Troches. Those suffering from asthmatic and bronchial diseases, coughs and colds, should try them. Price 25 cents.
